

Pakistan Climate Resilience Network (Pak-CRN) Community of Practice

The United Nations University Institute for Environment and Human Security (UNU-EHS), the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ), and the Global Change Impact Studies Centre (GCISC), presents the Pakistan Climate Resilience Network (Pak-CRN)

Why Pak-CRN?

Pakistan faces significant climate risks, requiring effective governance, actionable knowledge, and strong community collaboration. Pak-CRN bridges this need by:

- Establishing sustainable connections among climate experts, policymakers, academics, NGOs, and private sector representatives.
- Promoting knowledge exchange and innovative approaches to climate resilience.
- Facilitating the dissemination of developments in climate resilience in Pakistan, including new projects, research outcomes, conferences etc.

Who Should Join?

Pak-CRN is designed for a diverse range of professionals, including but not limited to:

Climate Risk Practitioners & Analysts	Government Employees & Policymakers	Academics, Researchers, & Students	Development & NGO Professionals	Private Sector & Civil Society Organizations
